Deva:	It all started when
Maryanne:	Well, actually it wasn't supposed to start at all
Deva:	Because she wasn't interested in starting anything
Maryanne:	That is, anything romantic.
Deva:	They were both enjoying themselves, having a good time, at the "Culver Cowboy"
Rob:	When he
Steve:	Noticed her good looks
Rob:	And warm personality, and so he approached her
Steve:	Like a true cowboy should
Deva:	And asked her to dance.

Maryanne:	She, thinking to herself, "He's not my type,   don't feel any sparks, so   guess   won't get myself into trouble!
Deva:	Accepted.
Steve:	Well he wasn't such a good dancer,
Maryanne:	But, to her surprise and delight, he had a nice touch !
Rob:	And talking between them was easy, and warm, and fun

Deva:	After years of being together, one day, Elaine said to Russell,
Maryanne:	"  think we should get married."
Deva:	To which Russell's first response was,
Steve:	"Are you(long pause!)pregnant?"
Deva:	And yes, in a manner of speaking, she was – pregnant with love.
Steve:	So, he agreed
Russell:	And why wouldn't   !?
Rob:	Which, brings us up to today.
Deva:	A poem by Sufi poet, Hafiz,
	written in the 13th century, says,
	"Even, after all this time,
	The sun never says to the earth,
	`You owe me.'
	Look, what happens
	With a love like that
	It lights up the whole sky."

And so, we celebrate this afternoon, the sweetness, and playfulness, the joy and devotion, and deep friendship, embedded in a philosophy of Giving... two hearts and spirits:

Elaine and Russell.
